Whereas most Italian restaurants are renowned for pasta, Tuscan stews and risotto, Italians are also known for their incredible Florentine steak. At West, we expanded on this style and have created Los Angeles' first Italian steakhouse. You will, of course, find housemade gnocchi, robust Italian salads, and even a selection of cured and marinated small plates as starters or to enjoy while at the bar. The steaks are prime and seared to perfection over a 1200 degree grill, and the wines are served in cortinas so that you may enjoy several selections over the course of your meal. It is the best of both worlds and the combination of flavors comes to life in a dining room with plush banquettes, marble tables and a panoramic view of the city.
